Visiting Fireman and the Tin Can Dump

A member of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department, heeled with a $100 expense account, will be among those present when the State firemen's convention is held several months hence at an as yet undetermined California city.

First official act of New Councilman and Fire Commissioner Frank Hefling was to look out for his own. At Wednesday night's meeting, he requested the city council to guarantee to pay expenses up to $100 of a Carmel delegate to the firemen's convention, a request which the city council was pleased to grant and which should set heads nodding with approval throughout the town, for the unpaid volunteer firemen are Carmel's fair-haired boys and nothing is too good for them. It is only through their continued vigilance that our city of picturesque, wooden cottages, nestled among our beautiful, pitch-soaked, highly inflammable pines, continues to survive all in one piece. If they wanted $100 to buy copper plated tiddlywinks, the city should pungle up with a smile. As it is, the money will be well spent, for our delegate will not only pick up any stray ideas about new fire fighting and fire prevention methods that may be floating around the convention, but he can scout about for information on what is doing in fire equipment, a very profitable activity since the city has $10,000 ready and waiting to buy a new fire engine whenever new fire engines are available, and we should have a general idea of what we want before we go shopping.

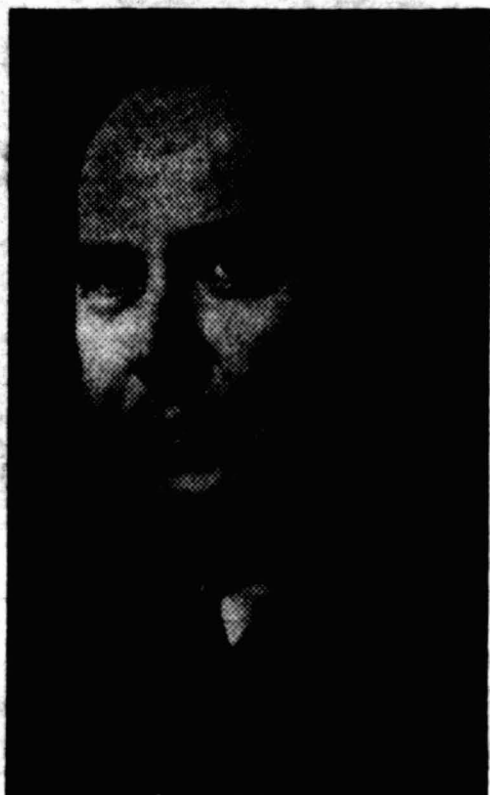

Besides, how could the city council be other than gracious in the matter of an expense account since only last week the fire department relieved the city council of its two year headache—the salvage dump!

Shortly after Pearl Harbor someone with a beautiful and unjustified faith in human nature thought it would be a patriotic and practical plan to offer the post office lot to the citizens as a salvage dump. It proved neither practical nor patriotic since two years of patient efforts on the part of the Mayor, Salvage Chairman Jack Gilbert, and the Pine Cone Cymbal failed to educate the public not to dump unspecified materials among the salvage, as they not only created an eyesore and a menace to health, but made the salvage materials useless since it was too herculean a task to sort it out from the objectionable miscellany.

Last month the city council voted to clean up the salvage pile and to close the post office lot to further dumping. The AWVS was delegated to handle the office work of the C. D. salvage department, but the matter of where to find a new dump was left unsettled.

This week the Volunteer Firemen came forward with the offer to establish a tin can depot at the fire house, and the service station across the street agreed to accept the paper salvage. The arrangement should work out excellently. One of the two paid

Local Gardens Yield Treasures For Gala Show

May Day sunlight picked out all the warm, bright colors of the trim, new garden approach to the Girl Scout House on Monday afternoon; it peered through the curtains, mingling with the flickering of candles, reflecting from dozens of mirror surfaces, and discovered a record throng of Carmel Woman's club members and their friends, attractive in their spring apparel, sipping punch and eating cookies against a background of luxuriant greenery and artistic floral arrangements of every variety and color. The May Day Flower Show, under the expert direction of Miss Flora Hartwell, appeared to have drawn forth most of Carmel's garden lovers.

The stage had been transformed by Mrs. Alta Crow of Pacific Grove into a miniature, mossy garden, complete with pool and pond lilies, where grew a dwarf lemon tree, a Jack-in-the-Pulpit, ferns, and quantities of iris, Siberian, Louisiana swamp and tiny table iris, yellow flava and primula japonica. A central table emphasized the day with its dancing dolls, posed in their green, pink, blue, lavender and yellow crepe paper dresses about a partly unwound

Exhibit of Pictures Priced Below $100 At Gallery May 15

An exhibit of paintings to sell for under a hundred dollars will open May 15 at the Carmel Art Gallery to reach the new market of people who have a little more money than formerly and who have heretofore not made a habit of buying paintings.

The decision to hold the exhibit was arrived at when the Gallery directors met Wednesday night.

Exhibitors must have their paintings at the Gallery by May 13, Myron Oliver, who will direct the hanging, announced. Pictures may be in any medium so long as they are priced to sell under $100.

High School Play At Sunset Tonight

Tonight at 8:15 at the Sunset School auditorium the drama class of Carmel High will present a play of youth, gaiety and charm.

"Happy Days is a plot comedy in which the dramatic pattern triumphs", according to the New York Times in a recent review. It is the gay story of the goings on of five adolescent children at home, a farm on an island in the St. Lawrence River, while their parents are in Quebec attending a funeral.

Two of the girls think up an interesting story to arouse the envy and attention of the other three children. But when the little story comes to life, complications, both amusing and touching, arise. It is a play especially adaptable to High School and College Drama classes.

The actors in the local production, under the expert direction of Miss Alberta Beeson, are: Claire Warner, Rozelle Bolton, Oliver Basset, Jim Jensen, Carol Walker, and Emile Passailaigue.

Admission is 35 cents for students and 55 cents for adults.

—June Quinn.

Martin Flavin's Journey in the Dark Wins Pulitzer Prize

A telegram from Columbia University, where the Pulitzer Prize advisory board had just concluded its deliberations, arrived for Martin Flavin at Spindrift, his Carmel Highlands home, at 3 p. m. on Monday, announcing that his Journey in the Dark had been given the distinguished novel award for 1943, together with the cash prize of $500.

This is the second accolade won by Journey in the Dark, Flavin's full bodied novel of the American Scene, written in Carmel, since it already has been accorded the Harper award for 1943, with its cash prize of $10,000.

Teen Age Council Offers Ideas For Improvements

By WALTER WARREN, STUDENT CITY CLERK

On Wednesday, May 3, 1944, John Graham, the Mayor, called the meeting of the city council to order. Did we say John Graham? No, there is no mistake. The time had arrived when each year the High School students take over the city council. John Graham acted as mayor, Howard Lockwood as fire commissioner, Joan Janda, commissioner of health and safety, Arnold Pilling, commissioner of police, Betty Powell, commissioner of streets, Sandy Hook city attorney, and Walter Warren, city clerk.

Sordid Money Is Main Business Of Council Meet

The students sat around the table in the place of the regular council while that honorable body sat behind them and prompted in weak spots. The students presented many useful subjects for discussion and offered some valuable suggestions.

After the adjournment of the Student City Council, Wednesday night, the regulars went into session disposing of a number of business matters, mostly in the realm of finance.

The city clerk announced that the gas tax apportionment from the State to the city for the quarter ending March 31, was $906.32, the total for the year, $3,916.36. The council accepted the P. G. & E. affidavits declaring the company's gross receipts in Carmel for the year to be $35,114.13 for gas and $13,143.81 for electricity, two percent of which goes to the city to pay for the franchise, making this year's payment $965.16, an increase of $47.24 over last year's payment.

Cause for rejoicing among the councilmen was a drop of $117.50 in the state liquor license apportionment to the city. This year's allotment is $440, while last year's was $550. The assumption of the council was that the fall off in tax revenue was due to a reduction of activity in the liquor trade.

Council voted to raise the insurance coverage of the fire house from $18,000 to $22,000, an increase of $7.92 in the premium.

Councilman Frank Hefling's request that the city pay expenses up to $100 incurred by a delegate to the state firemen's convention was granted. Council put over until next meeting the request of Edna Bassler to build a garage nearer the street than is allowed by the building code. Fall of the land in question makes complying with the city restrictions almost impossible, Building Inspector Floyd Adams said. Adams also presented for approval plans for the building of an ice dispensing machine by the Monterey Ice Delivery Co. at 5th and Junipero. After assuring themselves that the location was in Zone C-2, (unrestricted for this type of business) the council members approved.

The Mayor offered for the council's consideration a proposed ordinance prohibiting the sale of electrical appliances that are not approved by the United States bureau of standards.

Councilman Fred Godwin suggested that action on the request of the PTA for a street light near the recreation club be delayed until it was seen if the club would be a success. Until such time he suggested that a light be put on the building.

Traffic survey report of the Special Police was referred to new Police Commissioner Allen Knight.

Carmel Swallows Set The Clock Here On May Day

Residents of Carmel's Mission tract can throw away their calendars and spot May Day without fail—8:30 a. m. of May 1st, to be exact, according to Jack Black, who has made and recorded observations of swallow habits hereabouts over a long period of years.

According to Mr. Black, the routine never varies. Shortly before May Day, scouting parties of swallows put in an appearance in the vicinity of the Mission, surveying the situation and apparently sending back word that all is well. Then, promptly on the stroke of 8:30 a. m., May 1st, the sky is darkened by literally hundreds of flapping black wings. The swallows have come, not to Capistrano, but to Carmel. Since the pigeons from time immemorial have entrenched themselves about the eaves and bell tower of Mission San Carlos de Borromeo, many of the swallows philosophically set up their housekeeping arrangements under the eaves of the Mission Ranch club. Even in this, they seem methodical and well-disciplined. First one relay then another flies toward the river, returning for mud with which to plaster a nest, the second contingent waiting on its mark until the first has set about its construction work.

$900 And Lots Of Fun, Returns From "Arsenic"

By WILMA COOK

Arsenic and Old Lace cleared over $900 Friday and Saturday for the Carmel Music Society's concert grand piano. It also provided welcome entertainment to play-hungry and play-loving Carmel.

It wasn't a sparkling performance we saw Saturday night at Sunset Auditorium. The tempo was slow, the presentation as a whole, uneven, but one doesn't expect professional finish from an adult school drama class, and ninety percent of the audience enjoyed it more than if it had been performed by professionals — and strangers.

It was fun to see again such favorites as Lloyd Weer, Lee Crowe and Dan Welty, reliable old-timers of the Carmel stage, who jumped in to fill bit parts when it was decided on the spur of the moment to take the play out of the class room and put in on the stage for the benefit of the piano fund. They did their respective chores with the skill the audience expected of them. "Pop" Smith and Ken Carleton were two other familiars who played small parts efficiently.

Splendid as always was the work of Charlotte Kett and Betty Stevens who carried the burden of the double lead—the two poisoning sisters—with their accustomed ease. It is a joy to listen to the clean, clear-cut enunciation of Charlotte Kett and to watch her intelligent interpretation of any part that may be her assignment. Director Betty Stevens had not intended playing Martha Brewster, but the illness of Ruth Marion McElroy made it necessary for her to step into the part a few hours before final rehearsal. Saturday night when I saw the show, she played the role as if it had been tailor-made for her, which was not a great surprise to Carmel play-goers, accustomed to expect of her smooth and expert performances.

Outstanding newcomer was John Dennis, who, as Dr. Einstein, played his first role before an audience, and with the added burden of a German accent required by the part, produced clearly spoken lines in a seemingly soft voice that carried excellently in an auditorium of well-known acoustical difficulties.

Robert Anderson as the brother who thought he was T. R., surprised those of us who had seen him as the poetic juvenile in Ah Wilderness by bouncing through the boisterous part of Teddy Brewster, a transformation that would put a strain on anyone's versatility.

Two newcomers, Jean Maxwell and Ulrich Strauss, as Elaine and Mortimer, presented love scenes that did not produce subdued snickers from the audience, a constant hazard in amateur productions.

Other newcomers: David Farley, as Lt. Rooney, Lt. Leigh Stanton, as Jonathan Brewster, Capt. Arthur Wollet as Officer Klein, made a good start with the Carmel audience in "Arsenic" so that their development will be watched with interest as they appear in the series of plays it is hoped Betty Stevens will produce.

Great credit should go to the production staff responsible for the attractive setting and the thousand and one details that keep a play clicking through its allotted three acts: Captain A. Wollet, stage manager; Eayre Gregg, John

Philip Wermuth Suffers Eye Injury

Philip Wermuth, the eight-year old son of Engine Driver Delbert Wermuth of the Carmel Fire Department and Mrs. Wermuth, was the victim of an accident which occurred on Monday, April 24, in one of the class rooms of the Berkeley School for the Deaf, where he is at present a student.

An eraser, thrown during an interval when the teacher was absent from the room, struck the boy in the left eye, causing an injury for which he is now undergoing treatment in an effort to save it. A slight improvement in the hemorrhage condition was reported early this week.

Dr. Paul M. Hunter

The death of Dr. Paul M. Hunter, who succumbed to a heart attack on the evening of April 28 in a Pasadena hospital at the age of 53, brings a sense of loss to his many friends in Carmel, where he practiced medicine over a long period before moving to San Marino twelve years ago. The Hunter family maintained a home at Pebble Beach during the time of his local practice and are still in possession of a ranch up the valley, on the Carmel river.

Dr. Hunter retired from competitive golf several years ago, after establishing an outstanding record in the sport. He was state champion in 1921 and 1922 and ex-president of the California Golf association. He was five times

Southern California champion and was a member of the American team in the Walker cup championship.

Dr. Hunter was actively engaged in medical practice in Pasadena at the time of his death. He is survived by his wife and three daughters: Elizabeth, Pauline and Barbara Hunter, all of San Marino.

Teen Age Council Offers Ideas For City Improvement

caused Mayor John Graham to observe that apparently delinquency is not confined to juveniles.

Fire Commissioner Arnold Pilling reported that the emergency telephone booths on the beach are in need of repair and should be more clearly signed. When it was revealed in discussion that the emergency phones rang only in the office of the chief of police, a student spectator, Everett May, inquired if there is always someone in the police office to answer them. Adult Police Commissioner Allen Knight admitted that there was not but "we are working on that."

Pilling also suggested that the police manpower shortage resulting from the drafting of Officers Hay and Jelich be relieved by the hiring of honorably discharged members of the Military Police. He added that in consideration of the manpower shortage, the students would co-operate as much as possible with the police.

Fire Commissioner Howard Lockwood suggested that the city wait to spend the $10,000 it is authorized to use for a new fire engine as equipment bought now might be obsolete by the end of the war.

Commissioner of Health and Safety Joan Janda asked if it would be possible to have a life saving group to act in emergencies at the beach. Adult councilmen assured her that if it was entirely volunteer the city would not be liable, and said that they were "working on" that, too.

Janda reported that the salvage next to the post office had been cleaned up and that it will be received at the fire house now under the watchful eye of the fire department. She also made a suggestion that a stop sign be put up at Mission and Seventh where several accidents have occurred recently. Calling upon Adult Chief of Police Roy Fratley, the students got him to admit that a sign was needed at that spot. There was a discussion of the rabies quarantine and the need of dog owners to co-operate. Otherwise the quarantine will have to go on forever.

Mayor John Graham suggested that the outlying districts be brought into the Carmel City limits as a post war project. Hatton Fields and the Point would have to pay city taxes, then, but they would have police and fire protection. City Attorney Sandy Hook, asked how this could be done, explained that there would have to be a double election, one inside the city and one in the outlying districts. If both voted to make the change, notice would have to be filed with the state legislature.

The Teen Age Council then adjourned to seats in the audience to watch the regular council in session.

Mayor P. A. McCreery said he would probably attend the League of California Cities meeting in Salinas on May 10. Council voted to check on the parking situation at Ocean and Casanova in response to a request of Mrs. Eleanor W. Yates who stated that the street is so narrow at that place that if cars are parked across the street from her property it is difficult to back cars out of her garages. She requested permission to put up a no-parking sign.

Fashion Show And Tea For Service Wives Center

The patio of the Pine Inn will be the attractive setting for a fashion show tea to be given by the Service Wives' Center, Friday, afternoon, May 26. Hours are from 2 to 4.

Mrs. A. V. Arnold is general chairman for the affair and Mrs. Gordon Johnson is in charge of arrangements for the fashion show. Mrs. Eugene Ely heads the committee on waitresses and Mrs. L. L. Kotzebue is handling the tickets.

Local shops are cooperating for the show and Army and Navy wives and families will act as models. Harrison Godwin has generously extended the facilities of the Inn for the occasion and service wives and daughters will prepare the refreshments and service.

Reservations may be made at the Center offices or by calling 1051, and parties of six may be accommodated at the patio tables.

The Fashion Show Tea is being given to support the Service Wives' Center which is maintained daily from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. in joint offices with AWVS at the Pine Inn. The Center opened late in March as a general information service and to maintain an up-to-date roster of army and navy families in the community. It rapidly expanded its program to include temporary housing for new comers; a legal aid department to handle business and personal affairs for service people in cooperation with the Red Cross and military authorities; and the Service Wives' Counselor Bureau which handles employment for army and navy families.

Mrs. James F. Collins, chairman of the roster, has announced that 500 names now appear on the roll. She is very anxious that all service families in Carmel register at the Center office or phone 1051, so they may be contacted by their friends and reached in an emergency. Also, families moving away are requested to notify the Center when they depart.

Wife Receives Medals Awarded Major W. Dekker

In signal recognition of the valor of Major William N. Dekker of the Army Air Forces, missing in action in the North African theater of war since July 11, 1943, military ceremonies, including full troop review, were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Salinas Army Air Base of the Fourth Air Force.

The Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal, awarded to the Major for "outstanding leadership, extraordinary achievement and meritorious performance," were presented to his wife, Mrs. Mary S. Dekker, the ceremony witnessed by the couple's two young daughters, Joan and Sue Dekker, who make their home with their mother at 14th street and Camino Real in Carmel.

The presentations were made by Base Commanding Officer Colonel Joseph C. Moore during the full troop review commanded by Maj. Nicholas R. Gee. Organizations in the line of march included the 104th Cavalry Band; the 451st AAF Base Unit, commanded by Major John E. Dumon in Squadrons A, B, C, and W; Squadron T, commanded by Captain Charles W. Wallace, Sections A, B, C, and D.

Major Dekker, long prominent in business and civic affairs of the Peninsula, took up flying first as a hobby at the Monterey airport before joining the Army Air Corps in February, 1941. In November, 1942, he was sent to North Africa as a member of the troop transport command.

The citations for Major Dekker's awards read as follows:

The Distinguished Flying Cross "For the display of outstanding leadership and extraordinary achievements in leading a Troop Carrier group on a particularly hazardous parachute mission into enemy territory on the night of 11-12 July 1943. In the accomplishment of this mission Major Dekker displayed exceptional courage. His heroism and leadership contributed greatly to the outstanding success of the mission. His actions reflect great credit upon himself and the military service of the United States."

The Air Medal "For meritorious achievement while participating in a night aerial flight as a member of a combat crew, in unarmed, unarmored and unescorted Troop Carrier Aircraft, at an altitude of less than 500 feet, under adverse flying conditions. The skill and courage, the devotion to duty, exemplified by this individual, contributed in a large degree to the successful dropping of paratroops over designated dropping zones and reflect great credit upon himself, the XII Troop Carrier Command, and the United States Air Forces. Since this operation this officer has been reported missing in action."

"HOW TO WIN THE PEACE"

REPORTED BY L. LUCILE TURNER

Hon. Carl J. Hambro of Norway, president of the League of Nations Assembly and of his unhappy country's Parliament, member of the governing Board of the International Labor Organization, and described as one of the world's leading statesmen, spoke in San Francisco recently at the Institute on Post-War Problems of the Pacific at the Palace Hotel, on the subject above, the title of one of his many books. His address is here briefly reported.

A cynical comment out of Germany during the interval between the World Wars: "If the last war was not a war to end all war, at least the last peace was a peace to end all peace."

The reason that the Versailles Treaty failed, said Mr. Hambro, was that it did not recognize any problems greater than military and political ones. It made no provision for the men who returned home from the battlefronts, it offered no means of economic rehabilitation. Depressions arising in the war-ravaged lands inevitably spread from country to country, to engulf the whole world. We lost the last peace because we did not deserve to win it: self-indulgence had become the rule of the Anglo-Saxon peoples, not self-discipline, and peace is primarily a problem of continence.

In every democratic country the problems arising out of the war, of relations with other countries, should be discussed early and very freely, if solutions are to be found and an enduring peace established. Many new problems are coming out of the present war, which the United Nations must settle by working together. The right approach to settlement was made last year in the conference on foods, and again at Atlantic City in establishment of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Association. The problem of starvation and undernourishment is perhaps the greatest problem to be faced, especially in the countries overrun by the Axis powers. In extent it is much greater than at the close of the previous World War.

In the last great war 10,000,000 men were killed, but 45,000,000 persons died from epidemic and starvation, the "flu" alone taking 18,000,000. Now the toll of war and famine is on a far greater scale. Ten per cent of the people of the occupied countries will die of undernourishment; children by the thousands will succumb to ordinary diseases. UNRRA will have 50,000,000 starving people on its hands when the war ends, a stupendous problem, to tax the ability and humanity of the best administrators. In Norway, millions of persons were driven from their farms, causing a sharp reduction in foods; the average weight of all the people—including little children—dropped 20 pounds in the first months of the occupation! In the countries seized by the aggressors 7,000,000 adults were forcibly removed to Germany to work for their conquerors.

What can be done to relieve the want and suffering, to instill hope and life, so that these millions can help themselves and build anew? Many committees are now working on the problem, planning immediate relief and organizing machinery for rehabilitation. An International Institute of Education has been advocated to give right attitudes to youth in the aggressor countries, to counteract the "Education for Death" in Germany. No great power in 1918 had any educational or religious program to redirect the thinking and emotions of the Germans. The facts of German education for world domination were plain to us, but we did not like to see them. We want to forget unpleasant facts,

THIS COLUMN IS DEDICATED TO OUR YOUNG AVIATORS—

PRAYER FOR OUR FLIERS

O bear them up upon the inconstant air
With silver tread upon the fields of space
As confident as foot upon the stair
And with the added buoyancy of grace.
Grant them the instinct and the form of flight;
The sureness of the bird when from the bough
He ventures forth upon the gulfs of light
Without a single fear to disavow.

Strengthen their spirits where they range alone;
Lengthen their gaze across the wastes of strife
To that far day when love shall be the tone
Of a new golden era come to life;
And where their deadly missiles now are hurled
Return them soon to build a saner world.

WINGED YOUTH

TO B. J. D.

Oh youth! with faith's undaunted sight,
Transcending turbulence in flight,
God keep you singing, soaring, free—
Maintain your birth-right—liberty!

—RUTH POKLEN

TO A YOUNG AVIATOR

He fell in love with the sky!
Not that he treasured earth the less,
But freed of inch and mile
He felt the kindling thrill of space,
The kiss of freedom on his face,
The sun-exultant smile!

He breathed infinitude!
The blue of distance in his eyes
Became a shielded flame—
He was attentive, yet remote—
He listened, aye, but in his throat
There sang a shining name.

He never quite came down;
He took his place in talk and task
As from a point on high—
The earth was still his thoroughfare,
But ah, his heart was elsewhere—
He fell in love with the sky!

REVIEWS

but we must not; we must face disagreeable facts if we are to prevent future wars. One of the most urgent problems of the post-war world will be to re-educate the totalitarian world, but we must also re-educate ourselves. To the feeling of national responsibility which has prevailed up to now, we must add the feeling of international responsibility.

The problem of colonies to take care of surplus populations is not a problem, it has never really existed. The surplus populations did not want to move out of the homeland. Those who went to colonies went in order to exploit the native peoples. We must beware of slogans, we must not take any slogan on its face; we must study the facts and go below them to fundamental principles.

We have failed in our education for international peace, in not giving youth a true picture of the world, with its network of international relations and organizations that have long worked for common benefit. There is world collaboration in many fields; communications—by post, cable, radio; in the Postal Union, nations are united on a basis of inequality, with resulting good to all; international bureaus in business, commerce, inventions. No textbook summarizes for young people all these "going concerns" in collaboration, and yet to the boy and girl it is more interesting to build up than to destroy. It is stimulating to learn that harbor lights and signals are the same the world over, that drugs and serums are standardized by the League of Nations, that vitamins are rated in "international units."

History textbooks are not up to the necessary standard of truth and unbiased presentation of fact. It is impossible to teach the Civil War in this country in exactly the same textbook in schools of the southern states and those of the north. Yet Norway, Sweden, and Denmark teach with the same history texts, although those countries have had many difficulties in their mutual relations. The Chinese have a saying: There are three sides to every question, your side, my side, and the right side. This suggests the possibility of printing history in three parallel columns! Education for international understanding is a necessary condition for peace between nations.

To settle international difficulties, governments must supply more persons who have studied and know the problems, and must give them the power to decide the matter. The nations who have suffered most should have the right to speak, and those that have suffered least should listen. Immaterial factors have more effect in international relations than do material factors alone, although the former are frequently disregarded in arranging the settlement of a dispute, with the result of future problems arising. Regard must be had for the future, so that progress can be constantly made toward world collaboration. A good purpose to hold in mind: What is good enough for us shall never be good enough for our grandchildren.

Following Mr. Hambro's address, Clark M. Eichelberger, national director of the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace, and executive chairman of the United Nations Association, spoke on the subject, "The United Nations Must Organize Now," presenting practical plans for making use of existing machinery of collaboration to develop an organization that can handle future disagreements and difficulties without the terrible losses brought by war.

In the conduct of life, habits count for more than maxims, because habit is a living maxim, become flesh and instinct. To reform one's maxims is nothing: it is but to change the title of the book. To learn new habits is everything, for it is to reach the substance of life. Life is but a tissue of habits.

Musical Art Club Sunday's Concert "Bright Feather"

By EDWARD KUSTER

A members' audience assembled last Sunday night at the High School to hear the Frankenstein-Abramowitsch lecture-concert, the fourth event of the current Musical Art Club series.

To "re-view" that which is essentially transitory, a concert of music or dance, has always seemed to me a futile sort of business. To enjoy the shimmering beauty of a butterfly or the liquid tones of a nightingale one does not bash the unfortunate creature on its occiput and dissect its organs in the laboratory. Of the quality, now vanished forever, of the Musical Art Club's Sunday evening offering to Carmel I can say little more than we were informed, amused and stimulated by Mr. Frankenstein's colorful and piquant commentary on Modest Moussorgsky and his music, and were lifted to our feet in surprise and pleasure by the magnificent rendition of "Pictures at an Exhibition" by pianist Bernard Abramowitsch.

The speaker laid emphasis on the composer's associations with Victor Hartmann, 19th century

Stan Kenton, pictured above, who will bring his orchestra, which is featured on Bob Hope's radio program, to the Del Monte Roller-drome tonight, Friday, May 5th.

Russian architect-painter, ten of whose pictures were chosen by Moussorgsky as subjects for the brilliant impressionistic musical sketches known as "Pictures at an Exhibition." Mr. Frankenstein also took occasion to identify the composer not only as one of the "Great Five" of Russian nationalistic music but as the greatest of all the Russian composers to date. Whether we all agree with the speaker on the latter point is none of my business at this moment. It is a provocative opinion, at any rate.

After the masterly playing of the Moussorgsky work by Mr. Abramowitsch in its original form for piano solo—it was orchestrated in its current popular version by Maurice Ravel forty years after its composition—Mr. Frankenstein throwing on the screen many of the pictures and sketches of Victor Hartmann, including a number of those which had been Moussorgsky's inspiration. He told the fascinating story of the discovery of these pictures only a few years ago, after they had been gathering dust in a forgotten corner of the world ever since Hartmann's death in 1873.

Of the playing of Bernard Abramowitsch it is easy and pleasant to record not merely my own impression, but that of my neighbors in the audience, that we were hearing an artist of virtuoso calibre. All he seems to need, beside a decent piano, is to be "pre-sold" by a suitable "national advertising campaign." Meanwhile let him remain a bright feather in the cap of the Musical Art Club!

Drama Class Gets Report Cards After "Arsenic"

Amid the general rejoicing that broke out back stage in the Sunset School Auditorium last Saturday night as the final curtain went down on Arsenic and Old Lace, Ken Carleton's voice boomed out:

"Well, I guess we were pretty good!"

"Don't be too sure!" Robert Anderson called back as he made a dash for the dressing room to get off the grease paint. "Better wait till our report cards are in."

Robert was right.

When the Drama Class met for "business as usual" on Monday evening, many of the members found that they had earned only B's and C's instead of the "straight A's" that their friend's praises had led them to expect. For Arsenic and Old Lace, which meant an evening's entertainment to the public and a sizable contribution to the Piano Fund, constituted the mid-term examination for the Adult School's Drama Class.

Monday evening's meeting was devoted to a critical review of the technical aspects of the two performances of the play which had been so enthusiastically received by the audience. Honorable mention was accorded the two neophytes, Captain Arthur Wollet and John Dennis, for their excellent work in the beginners section.

No member rated higher than B for voice production; and it was agreed that, as Sunset School Auditorium presents special problems on account of its acoustics, close attention must be given to this subject before another play is attempted. There is a natural tendency to believe that all one has to do to make oneself heard is to shout, Mrs. Stevens, the director, pointed out. But shouting in that auditorium tends to defeat its own ends. Better results are to be obtained by clarity of thought and diction, variety of tonal quality and consciousness of distance. On these points the class is now working.

The class still has much to learn, they agree, about "dressing the stage", making way for the other fellow, and grounding speech and action on thought—the thought of the character being portrayed.

In its present phase, the work of the Drama Class can be followed profitably by anyone interested in the subject regardless of whether or not he wishes to participate in a play.

The one point which elicited universal satisfaction was the appreciable addition to the Piano Fund which the public's hearty support made possible. The class agreed that this was icing its

Students Furnish Entertainment For Adult Organizations

As their contribution toward public school week activities, high school students furnished entertainment for the Lions and the American Legion at their meetings here this week.

George Moller, Sandy Hook and Everett May discussed Democracy at the American Legion meeting Monday night. Lighter entertainment was furnished the Lions club at their dinner meeting at the Pine Inn Tuesday evening when Jim Jensen and Mary McElroy accompanied by George Myette, did a song and dance act, and a brass quartet under the leadership of Jaffrey Harris played several numbers. Jim Heisinger, Joe Goodrich, Don Appleton and Don Rains made up the quartet.

High School girls under the direction of Miss Lucile Burtis assisted the Carmel Woman's club with decorations for their flower show.

Z. Potter "Ace" Salesman for OPA

The lead story on page one of the Wall Street Journal, April 17, terming Carmel's Zenas Potter "OPA's Ace Salesman," says:

Salesmanship has brought new cheer to the Office of Price Administration, which had become frazzled living in the same town with belligerent congressmen.

Techniques newly used by the O. P. A. in its dealings with Capitol Hill are being observed from the sidelines with envy by functionaries of other federal agencies. Some of them believe the O.P.A. has discovered an approach which will be widely imitated by the bureau.

What is this new system? Where did it originate? Who is behind it? These questions are being asked by official Washington.

The "master-mind" is advertising expert Zenas Potter, "Congressional Relations Director" for advertising expert Chester Bowles, the price administrator.

A fundamental of the Potter-Bowles system is: Say it with charts.

When he testified before the Senate and House Banking and currency committee, he came well armed with charts, 200 of them, 150 dealing with prices, 50 with rationing.

In practice, it seems that a legislator who might be distrustful of an oral statement is inclined to accept a chart. Mr. Potter points out that when Congressional committeemen start propounding questions to a defenseless official, it doesn't take long to lead the witness far afield. But, with charts, the committee members can be brought back on the beam, and the official story can be recited.

Mr. Potter said his governmental chart system actually dates back to World War I, when he was chief of the Central Bureau of Planning and Statistics, preparing cake. They attend the class to learn to act and produce plays. They give their plays to test their capacities, and—they hope—to entertain their audiences. If, in addition, they can add to the amenities of the community, they count it a pleasure and a privilege.

The Drama Class meets regularly on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays at 7:30. Its quarters have been temporarily changed to the Music Room, South of the Stage Entrance at Sunset School. All interested persons are invited to attend.

confidential reports for President Wilson and Bernard Baruch, then head of the War Industries Board. These reports, prepared to keep the high executives constantly informed of the progress of the war, were liberally sprinkled with charts to tell their story graphically. Consequence: Compliments from President Wilson.

A.A.U.W. Discuss Price Control, Food-Drug Act

Discussion of consumer problems and the regulations of the Office of Price Administration to keep down the cost of living, and a report on sessions of the Institute on Post-war Problems of the Pacific held in San Francisco on March 3 and 4 furnished the program for the American Association of University Women at Mrs. Lee O. Kelloggs' home on Scenic drive on Saturday afternoon. Members of the League of Women Voters were guests at the program.

Mrs. Blanchard Steeves, program chairman, explained the importance of consumer problems and the work of the national A.A.U.W. and other women's organizations in getting the facts before the public. The program aims at bringing about strengthening the Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act of 1938 and its administration; co-ordination of consumer activities and extension of consumer services in the federal government; development of standards of quality for consumer goods; prevention of enactments authorizing price-fixing contracts between manufacturer and retailer; and protection of the public against unfair trade practices. The lack of adequate standards of quality and intelligible labeling of goods paves the way for increased costs.

Mrs. Peter Ferrante presented more fully the subject of grade labeling, the efforts of consumer groups to get it incorporated into the law and to require recognized standards of quality in manufactured goods. Without such standards, real regulation of price is impossible. The shortage of consumer goods and increased purchasing power due to the war have upset the ordinary economic checks on price increases, making necessary some government regulation to check inflation. The opposition to grade labeling and regulation of prices comes from those groups which will profit financially from runaway prices, and only the persistent efforts of consumer groups will prevent such increased costs.

Mrs. Davison explained the work of the O.P.A. in setting ceiling prices and requiring stores to post such prices for the information of customers. The latter can greatly assist the regulation by checking prices marked on goods against such lists and reporting any higher listings to the local office of O.P.A. Names of such informers will not be revealed, but only by such information can the authorities regulate prices. Cooperation of consumers is absolutely necessary to prevent undue rise in the cost of living.

A brief report on some of the important speeches given at the Institute on Post-War Problems, notably those of Hon. Carl J. Hambro, of the League of Nations Assembly and also of the Norwegian Parliament, and Clark M. Eichelberger, national director of the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace and editor of Changing World, was given by Miss L. Lucile Turner, who attended the session of the institute. A partial report is given on the feature page of this issue of The Pine Cone Cymbal.

At the business meeting, preceding the program, Miss Frances Whitehead, president, announced the next meeting as a breakfast on Sunday, May 28, at the home of Mrs. G. M. Beall, at which election will be held of the president and the secretary to serve the next two years. The vice-president and the treasurer hold office until next year. Mrs. Elizabeth Hill, chairman of the book section announced the next meeting of her group for May 16 at the home of Miss Muriel Simpson, at which a musical program will be given. Tea was served before the meeting began.

4 Fine Attractions Arranged For By Concert Association

Because the sixth annual membership campaign was so highly successful the Monterey Peninsula Community Concert association is able to bring four outstanding musical attractions to Pacific Grove during the 1944-45 concert season, according to Mrs. Clyde F. Dyke, president.

Vivian Della Chiesa, well known star of opera and radio will present the first concert in the fall. She has sung with the Chicago Opera company for several seasons and with a number of other opera companies in addition to her many radio programs, but her greatest triumph came when Arturo Toscanini engaged her as guest soloist last summer and she will appear with him again this coming summer. Her voice is pure lyric soprano of great power. She is also an accomplished violinist and pianist.

The Bary Ensemble, which is extraordinary as a musical unit, will meet a demand for a widely varied instrumental program. The Ensemble was formed by Gertrude Bary, pianist, Lorna Wren, flutist, Mara Sebrinsky, violinist, and Virginia Peterson, cellist.

The third concert will be presented by Mildred Dilling, world famous harpist, who appeared as a Community Concert artist in Salinas several seasons ago. She comes at the request of many members who heard her at that time and have asked repeatedly for her appearance locally.

The last concert will be Bartlett and Robertson, duo-piano team, of whom the New York World-Telegram said, "All other piano teams are measured by them."

Admission to these concerts will be by membership card only, no single admissions sold at the door. Any interested people may place their names on the waiting list at the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce for cards turned in by members who move away.

Membership also entitles one to attend Salinas Community Concerts at no extra cost. They are presenting the sensational colored soprano, Dorothy Maynor; Robert Weede, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera; and William Primrose, undisputedly the "world's finest viola player" who made such a hit in Pacific Grove in February that Salinas members demanded his appearance on their program for the next season.

Pit 5's generators are now spinning—214,477 horsepower for war work and for YOUR home!

Spic and span as a newly launched ship on her maiden run—Pit 5 Powerhouse—the 65th and largest of the P. G. and E. interconnected electric system, is sending a new and added surge of electric energy along the 250 mile, 220,000 volt transmission lines which run down the Sacramento valley.

Pit 5 is tied into the P. G. and E.'s interconnected electric network meeting the increased requirements of war industries, military establishments and our more than one million electric customers.

When Peace comes, this mighty generating plant will do its share in the continuing progress and development of Northern and Central California. Pit 5's huge generators, delivering the dynamic force of more than TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND horses, give added assurance that for mine or mill, farm or factory, home or office, electric service will continue to be "dependably yours."

The Pit 5 Powerhouse is timely in completion—planned for peacetime—ready for war demands. This great project represents one phase, one unit in a tax-paying enterprise free to contribute to the upbuilding of the region and to the customers it serves. Pit 5 brings assurance of a continuing dependable supply of electricity at low cost.

Laura Lee Koepp in Dance Troupe

The many Carmel friends of the Lee and the Koepp families, who took a prominent part in Carmel community life before moving to Hollywood two years ago, will be interested to know that when the Cronin Revue and Circus comes to play on the Peninsula, among its troupe of ten dancing girls who have been training under George Cunningham, formerly with Dillingham at the Globe Theatre in New York, where he directed some of the Fred and Dorothy Stone productions, will be young Laura Lee Koepp, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Koepp, and granddaughter of the late C. W. Lee and Mrs. Lee. Belonging to the third generation of a family associated with the theatre, Laura Lee Koepp is the niece of Hollywood's well known director, Rowland Lee. Her father, Mr. Guy Koepp, was the architect of many fine Carmel homes before establishing his family in Hollywood, where he is at present serving in the designing department of an airplane factory.

Double Party

Mrs. G. D. Fleig and Mrs. A. T. Templeman were hostesses for a double birthday party on Friday evening, April 28, given at the Templeman home on Camino Real and 10th Street, in honor of Joan Fleig, 13, and Carol Templeman, 11. Each arriving guest was given a different flower boutonniere to serve as a name in the games played during the evening. Refreshments, including two rose-decorated and beaded cakes of different color and fruit punch, were served buffet style and the young guests departed reluctantly around midnight after a highly enjoyable evening. Present were the following 7th grade schoolmates of Joan Fleig: Jean Southwell, Jeanne Lamberth, Anne Wales, Louise Harber, Louise Daniels, Connie Melchior, and Carol Templeman's guests: Jackie Wheeler, Suzanne Smith, Jane Ashworth, Jeannine Marshall, Clara Wermuth and Barbara Holland.

Gaiety After Show

Following the final drop of the curtain on Saturday night's performance of Arsene and Old Lace, the cast, production staff and a large group of their friends repaired to the San Antonio street home of Mrs. Ruth Marion McElroy to enjoy hugely a party given in honor of Mrs. Betty Stevens, who not only directed the week end's successful drama project but stepped ably into a leading role, replacing the hostess, whose illness forced her to relinquish it at the last moment.

MacGillavry, Mrs. Ruth Marion Elroy and Mrs. Boyd Clapham. Captain Potjer, a citizen of Holland, and prior to the war a Commodore in the Dutch merchant fleet, has spent the past four years in the South Pacific, where his flagship has done service as a hospital ship, transporting wounded from New Guinea to New Zealand. On his recent voyage to the United States, Prime Minister Curtin of Australia was his passenger. He has just been decorated by the British government and made a Commander of the British Empire. of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Golden Text will be: "Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light," (Eph. 5:14).

Other Bible citations will include: "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass . . . The Lord knoweth the days of the upright: and their inheritance shall be for ever," (Ps. 37:7, 18).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook: "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The great truth in the Science of being, that the real man was, is, and ever shall be perfect, is incontrovertible; for if man is the image, reflection, of God, he is neither inverted nor subverted, but upright and God-like," (p. 200).

PAINTING LOST

A canvas by Jules Flobert, depicting a large central Del Monte oak, with two smaller oaks in the background, unframed and not yet complete with signature, was taken from the artist's car sometime between three and four last Friday afternoon, while it was parked near the Doolittle service station in Monterey.

Several other paintings, all of them framed, were still in the car when Mr. Flobert returned to it, and he did not note his loss until the following morning. The missing canvas, result of three or four weeks' intensive work, has been valued at $150.

GOING UP

Unless someone volunteers to stand at the top of Ocean avenue hill with a club and pick off the new citizens as they arrive, Carmel will burst its seams shortly, according to Assistant Postmaster Fred Mylar. He bases his opinion of the expanding condition of the census on the continued up in post office receipts. Last month Carmel post office took in $7,040.96, a gain of $1,486.48 over the $5,554.48 of April 1943 which gained $647.00 over the take of April 1942, $4,907.30.

The Editor,
CARMEL PINE CONE.
Dear Madam:

In acknowledging with sincerest gratitude your unfailing generosity to the Piano Fund Drive of the Carmel Music Society, may I take advantage once more of space in your paper to ask you to communicate to all of those who have contributed to the success of the Drive, the heartfelt thanks of the Board of Directors of the Carmel Music Society?

We should like especially to record our indebtedness to the Drama Class of the Adult Night School under the direction of Miss Betty Stevens, who in contributing so unstintingly of their time and gifts have made a most substantial addition to the Fund.

Gratefully yours,
NOEL SULLIVAN, President.

To the Editor:

Some days ago a Carmel High School student accosted me on the street, said he had read in a recent issue of your paper the Pen Point contribution, and asked, "Is it true a quill was ever in use as an implement for writing? How could it be? How long might it last, etc., etc.?"

I assured him it was even so, but as to lasting qualities, I could not speak, yet suspected it would endure untrusted and workable as long or longer than a bank or post office steel pen, but on that I had no data. A brief search, however, now discloses this:

Philemon Holland, 1552-1637, an Englishman, noted as a translator, and an author in his own right, made this entry in one of his books, "With one sole pen I write this book,

Made of a gray goose quill;
A pen it was when it I took,
And a pen I leave it still."

Respectfully yours,
Dudley Kinsell.

Local Gardens Yield Treasures For Show

May Pole, the work of Miss Lucile Burtis' art class at the high school, the arrangement by Pat Davis and Bonnie Fish.

Outstandingly beautiful were the giant pink and yellow roses from the Pebble Beach garden of Mrs. W. H. Hargrave; the novel arrangement by Mrs. E. H. Tickle of baby pink roses and purple pansies and white calla lilies in their polished shell containers; the jewel-like miniatures of Miss Flora Hartwell and Mrs. William Conrad Bogen; Alison Stilwell's exotic grouping of ichium about an Oriental figure; Mrs. Kathryn Lansdowne's white iris and white swans; the mammoth lemons from the Scenic Drive garden of Mr. D. W. Roper arranged by Mrs. Alfred Wolff against a profusion of Scotch broom; the dainty effect achieved by Mrs. W. P. Colvin, Sr., with purple iris and pale green leaves against a silver tray; Mrs. Edith J. Quinn's lively yellow poppies grouped with tall wheat stalks and pink roses and the two Victorian bowls, one filled with roses by Mrs. D. Hand and the other with variegated spring blossoms by Mrs. Louise Grigsby. There were amazing giant iris from the Del Monte Fairways garden of Mr. E. T. Cunningham; and blooms from the famed Orrick estate of Pebble Beach and the Monterey garden of Carmel Martin; Succulents and fuchias were artistically arranged by Miss Celia Seymour in a shallow green bowl; a charming display of Phyllis bide roses came from the garden of Mrs. J. E. Abernethy; and twin flower carts were placed by Mrs. D. E. Nixon, the one containing her own graceful arrangement, the other an eager imitation provided by her little "garden helpers and hinderers." Miss Marjory Pegram had made an effective combination of calla lilies and fuchias, and laid out on their labeled cards were no less than 56 different varieties of fuchias from the Pacific Grove garden of Mrs. Lawrence Lyon. General D. Hand contributed roses for connoisseurs and a mammoth bouquet of fragrant sweet peas. Mrs. Louis Grigsby and Miss P. Leslie King arranged a mosaic-like grouping of part-colored blossoms to match an attractive container. Mrs. Nelle Leyman provided a lovely grouping with a white fawn and matching vase containing a single huge yellow rose. Mrs. J. D. Bassford had placed pink and white camellias in a violet bowl upon a mirror surface of blue, and equally distinctive were the pansy groupings by Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston and arrangements displayed by Mrs. Josephine Kern, Mrs. C. J. Ryland, Mrs. William Silva, Miss Irene de Gallier, Mrs. Knudsen and Mrs. F. W. Clampett. Assisting Miss Flora Hartwell in dispensing hospitality were Mrs. J. E. Abernethy, Mrs. Mary Heathorne, Miss Helen Baldwin, Mrs. Nelle Leyman, Miss Agnes Knight, Miss Daisy Allcott, Mrs. Elliot Bright, Mrs. H. L. Clement, Mrs. George Febiger, Mrs. S. M. Baldwin, Mrs. Elsie Lewis, Mrs. C. Montague Irwin, Mrs. John Jordan, Mrs. I. B. Coldren, Mrs. Saxton Pope, Mrs. W. D. Conn, Mrs. J. W. Getsinger, Mrs. Leon Fisher, Mrs. E. D. Duncan, Mrs. Harry Nye, Mrs. Fenton Grigsby, Mrs. H. C. Cranston and Mrs. Alfred Wolff.

Presiding over the cut flower booth with her were Mrs. Marshall Ware and Mrs. Alton Walker. Plants were in charge of Mrs. Hugh Comstock and her committee: Mrs. D. E. Nixon, Mrs. B. H. Cory and Miss Winifred Lynn. To Miss Lynn also goes the credit for the new garden blooming about the Girl Scout House. Presiding over the punch bowl and refreshment table were Mrs. E. B. Grigg and her assistants: Miss Frances Hartwell, Mrs. Ross Hoffman and Mrs. Helen Warren. For the background of recorded music which contributed much to a thoroughly successful occasion, Mrs. Kathryn Lansdowne, music chairman, and her committee: Mrs. A. J. Cornelison and Miss Maude Barger, were responsible.

The annual meeting of the Carmel Woman's club will take place on Monday, May 29, at the Girl Scout House, convening at 12:30 with a box luncheon. This meeting
